SERVING THE BEALE AIR FORCE BASE, CALIF., COMMUNITY

JUNE 15, 2007

Beale High Flyer inducted June 6

2nd Lt Ashley Peltier
9 RW Public Affairs

Team Beale surprised one of its community leaders by honoring her as the sixth recipient of the High Flyer award at the Honorary Commanders' Induction breakfast on Wednesday, June 6 at Recce Point.

"Janie Nall exceeds the requirements for this prestigious recognition and has made an overwhelmingly positive impact on Beale", said Brig. Gen. H. D. Pumbo Jr., 9th Reconnaissance Wing commander, said.

In July of 2000, the 9th Reconnaissance Wing initiated the "High Flyer" program as a way to honor those community leaders who have displayed significant dedication and long term commitment to Beale's mission and supporting quality of life issues for Team Beale's Airmen. Nominees for this highly regarded distinction must have fostered a better environment for both Beale Air Force Base and surrounding local communities.

"It's a huge honor to be recognized for the work I do," Janice Nall, Beale Military Liaison Committee Board member said. "I do it all because I love Beale."

Ms. Nall not only helped raise over $30,000 for Operation Warm Heart, but has also served as a Beale ambassador, making multiple personal trips to Washington, D.C. to inform state senators and representatives of the needs of Beale and its Airmen.

"The people here are the reason I do what I can," said Ms. Nall. "It's the least I can do for all the Airmen and their families who are making sacrifices and proudly serving our country."

The High Flyers that precede Ms Nall include: James Changaris (2000), Ron Bartoli (2000), Anthony (Tony) Bevacqua (2003), Doug Sloan (2004) and Fran Peace (2006).

Volunteers provide support for troubled teens, young adults

By Airman 1st Class George Cloutier
9th RW Public Affairs

Volunteers from Beale are helping less fortunate young people from local communities improve their quality of life and rise above the challenges of growing up in a dysfunctional environment through Yuba College's AmeriCorps Foster Youth Mentoring Program.

These Airmen who take their time to help others in desperate need are no strangers to the difficulty of growing up in less fortunate families. Now in the Air Force, they use their experiences and life lessons to mentor young people in desperate life situations much resembling theirs at one time.

Tech. Sgt. Jeanna Rogers, 9th Mission Support Squadron First Term Airmen Center NCO-in-charge, said she didn't grow up in a perfect household, and now helps two young women, one with an 8-month-old baby, overcome challenges she herself faced at one time.

"We're teaching young people who did-

9th RW Command Post Airman wins ACC award

By Airman 1st Class
George Cloutier
9th RW Public Affairs

A senior NCO with the 9th RW Command Post recently won the ACC Command Post Senior NCO of the Year award. Master Sergeant Jodie Briscoe, 9th RW CP superintendent, won the award for her superior performance during her short time at Beale since taking over as command post superintendent in July of 2006. Sergeant Briscoe started taking on new challenges as soon as she arrived at Beale, one of such being this was also her first time supervising so many individuals.

"I dealt with one person for 16 years of my career and then, boom!, I'm dealing with 23," Sergeant Briscoe said. "That was very challenging."

Follow the leader

By Lt. Col. Paul Wade
548th Intelligence Group
deputy commander

"I wouldn't have accomplished anything without the great Airmen working for me." We've all heard variations of this phrase at promotions, changes of command and award ceremonies.

Yet you may not realize the hidden responsibilities behind this modest statement of thanks.

Leaders at every level depend on their followers for success, and we all have leaders we follow.

Even the chief of staff of the Air Force must be a follower too. So what does it mean to be an effective follower?

Ironically, one of the key items to good followership is being able to think and act on your own. After receiving guidance and direction from your leader, get out there and do things! If you see a problem, fix it.

Don't wait for a supervisor to identify it for you.

"All well and good," you say, "but what if I'm not getting that direction?" That's the next part of being a good follower: fight for feedback (or direction). If you're not sure what your boss wants, ask them. If you're not getting the direction you need, run a recommendation by your boss for their approval.

Once you've received your direction, project or problem, assume ownership of it.

No one should know more about your project than you. How can you improve it? Can it be done faster or better? Do the research and brainstorming, so you can get the job done and offer recommendations. Remember, the boss will be dealing with many issues, so they will expect you to be the subject matter expert. If you present a carefully prepared, well-supported course of action, it will likely be enacted.

Ok so far, but now you disagree with the decision of your boss.

Usually there will be a chance to express your concerns. Take advantage of that opportunity; in fact, I would argue you have an obligation to raise your concerns. Do this professionally, and depending on the nature of the issue, you may want to do this in private. The weekly staff meeting is rarely the proper venue to directly challenge your boss.

"Well, that was a waste of time ... the boss didn't change his decision."

Not exactly. You've just demonstrated you are not a "yes-man." Most leaders seek out the "no-men," those who are willing to differ with the boss.

These individuals often become the leader's most trusted confidants, because the leader knows they will provide an honest assessment.

Of course, you're still stuck with a policy you don't like. Now what?

This one is simple: execute that policy to the best of your ability. You voiced your opposition, you were heard and the decision was made; now salute and drive on (obviously, this doesn't include illegal orders, which should be worked up the chain of command).

Beyond just implementing the policy, a good follower puts a stop to gossip that undermines the leader.

Finally, a good follower should strive to develop the skills to be a good leader at their own level.

You may not be the Flight Commander or NCO-in-charge, but you can still lead by example.

You can still learn everything there is to know about your particular project. Leadership and followership are two sides of the same coin; both are critical to mission success.

To become a stronger leader, start by becoming a more active follower.

Another major challenge Sergeant Briscoe took on was managing the ongoing renovation to the command post.

"When I first got here, everything was outdated," Sergeant Briscoe said. "Now we have almost half-a-million dollars worth of renovation complete and it's still ongoing."

During the renovation, the command post personnel have been sharing space with the 940th Air Refueling Wing command post, which presented more problems for the new superintendent. Sergeant Briscoe's dedication to excellence extends not only to her time on duty, but in her time off duty, giving back to her community and helping those in need.

"I love volunteering," she said. "I don't care how much money you have, if you don't give back to the community, you're going to have a hole in your heart."

Sergeant Briscoe said that although she's worked very hard, she couldn't have made her recent accomplishment without the help of her family and coworkers.

"I want to thank everybody who works in the command post because they've made me grow, made me mature, made me stronger and wiser," Sergeant Briscoe said. "I also want to thank my husband. He encourages me. Even when I think I can't do it, he lets me know that I can. Sergeant Briscoe said."

n't choose to be in the environment they're in," Sergeant Rogers said. "We teach them how to do things like iron and wash their clothes, how to fill out a checkbook, how to exercise, how to cook."

"We're teaching them how to deal with life, Sergeant Rogers said."

Sergeant Rogers said it's much more than just teaching, it's also about being there, being a good friend and being someone the youth in the program can count on.

"You have to think, there are many people in their lives that they can't count on," Sergeant Rogers said. "Pretty much, in their minds, anyone that ever cared for them left them."

Sergeant Rogers said that giving the youth someone they can trust helps them tremendously and she has already seen great improvement in both her mentees. These sentiments are echoed by other volunteers as well, such as 2nd Lt. Jenny Joao, 9th Logistics Readiness Squadron Fuels Management Flight commander, who also mentors two young women.

Lieutenant Joao was born as the child of a single mother, who was eventually given a chance at success by her foster parents, who she calls mom and dad.

She now uses her experiences as a child and the examples set forth by her foster parents to give desperate youth a positive outlook on their future.

"Throughout the past six months I have watched these young girls change their view on life from an outlook of bitterness and resentment to two beautiful young ladies filled with happiness, goals and determination," Lieutenant Joao said.

Lieutenant Joao said the difficulties these teens have faced throughout their lives such as sexual abuse and homelessness have led them to develop a tough outer shell. However, with care and nurturing, their protective shells disintegrate, revealing their true caring and bright personalities.

"Being a mentor has shown me that the teens that have had the unfortunate life of being dubbed as 'foster children' are some of the greatest, most loving, appreciative teens I've ever met," Lieutenant Joao said.

Another Beale mentor who said he's come to see these young people's true personality underneath their rough exterior is Senior Airman Greg Nelson, 9th Civil Engineer Squadron operations manager.

"These teens are smart young adults and just being around them and hearing them joke and express themselves is something in itself," Airman Nelson said.

Airman Nelson said that he gets great satisfaction out of being a mentor, especially since he had a difficult time as a youth himself, and greatly values helping his mentees find the right path in life.

"I want to let these teens know that there are people out there who care about them and where they go in life," he said.

All the mentors said that giving their mentees hope for the future is the most important and satisfying part of what they do as they know personally what difference a little bit of hope can make in the life of a desperate young person.

Proud to Serve

By Chief Master Sgt. Tim Toman
9th Medical Group superintendent

As I approach the 28 year point of my Air Force career, I find myself more often than not pondering my future and what life will hold in store for me when I retire. However, last week I had reason to reflect not only on my past, but the collective past of our Air Force. June 4 to 10 was declared Air Force Week in Sacramento and the surrounding area. Throughout the week, I had the opportunity to attend memorable events celebrating our partnership with industry, the civilian community and commemoration of the Air Force 60th anniversary.

Prior to and since inception of the Air Force in 1947, the enlisted corps has made many significant contributions to its success. From Private First Class Vernon Burge, the Army Signal Corps' first enlisted pilot, to Esther Blake who held the distinction of not only being a member of the enlisted force, she was also the first woman to enter the Air Force. One would be remiss in not mentioning Beale Air Force Base's own living legend, Brig. Gen. Chuck Yeager, who began his career as an enlisted maintainer, graduated in the last class of "Flying Sergeants" and eventually went on to become the first pilot to travel faster than the speed of sound. I could go on and on, but at this time I invite you to open your Air Force Pamphlet 36-2241, Professional Development Guide to Chapter 2 or visit the Air Force Link Web site at <http://www.af.mil/history/> and continue to delve into our rich and storied history.

Community Briefs

AF Reserve in-service recruiter

Airmen separating from active duty within the next six months are required to schedule an appointment with the in-service recruiter.

Items covered are education, re-training, the Air Reserve Technician program and other Air Force Reserve benefits and entitlements.

Interested in early separation?

Ask about the Palace Chase program.

For more information call Master Sgt. Roger Haynes at 634-3120 or e-mail at roger.haynes@beale.af.mil or visit the office located next to Civilian Personnel at the MPF in room 178.

Salvation Army drive

The Company Grade Officer Council is holding a donation drive in support of the Salvation Army on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Community Center.

They will be collecting clothing items, household items, toys and sports equipment.

For more information, e-mail 2nd Lt. Bryan Bell at bryan.bell@beale.af.mil.

Three Day TAP

The next three-day Transition Assistance Program is scheduled for June 26 to 28 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The three-day TAP class is a condensed version of the five-day TAP class and is designed for individuals who know what they want to do upon leaving the service. To register, call 634-2863.

Breastfeeding support group

A free breastfeeding support group is open to all women and children Mondays at 9:30 a.m. in the Foothills Chapel.

For more information, call Julie Mathews at 788-7660.

Air War College

The Beale Education center is enrolling eligible officers and federal employees for the Air War College non-resident studies course.

Interested officers and DOD civilian employees (GS-13 or above) must sign up by July 15.

For more information or questions, call the education Center at 634-2525.

Commissary sidewalk sale

The next commissary sidewalk sale is scheduled for June 19 and 20. For more information, call 634-2424.

Available NAF positions

Beale Thrift Shop

Beale's Thrift Shop is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. during the summer.

Consignments are accepted until 12:30 p.m. Call ahead before dropping off large items.

The shop will be closed July 3, 5 and Aug. 14, 16 and 21. Proceeds from sales go to the Beale Officers' Spouses' Club's charitable fund used for scholarships and community donations.

The thrift shop is located in the Omni parking lot across from the commissary.

For more information, call 634-1893.

APM added at flightline

The Automated Prescription Machine at the Base Exchange has paved the way to launching an APM on the flight line.

The APM currently located at the clinic lobby will be moved to the flight line in the Base Operations building, Building 1060, to maximize its utilization and offer greater convenience.

The APM is scheduled to be operable by the end of June.

The APM only dispenses refill prescriptions and requires a personal identification number, which can be obtained by an APM attendant at the BX or by the pharmacy staff at the medical clinic.

The following can not be dispensed out of the APM: new prescriptions (handwritten and physician order entry), controlled substances or narcotics (e.g. Tylenol with codeine, Vicodin), large bottles and boxes, and medications requiring mixing and/or refrigeration (e.g. Amoxicillin suspension, Benzaclin, insulin). Refills must be called into the refill line at 634-2859. The refill policy is as follows: refills called in before noon is available for pick-up after noon the following day; those called in after noon will be available in two duty days after noon. For more information, call the pharmacy at 634-2337.

U-Fix-It Store new location

The family housing U-Fix-It Store has moved to 5202 A and B West Nugget Court. The store is open for business Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call 788-1470.

Smoke testing for selected sewers begins

By the 9th Civil Engineer Squadron

Air Combat Command headquarters and Beale have contracted with URS Group and ADS Environmental Services to perform physical inspection and smoke testing of base sewers and manholes. On Monday manhole inspections and smoke testing will begin in all areas of the base except for military family housing. Testing is expected to last from Monday until July 13.

Smoke testing is conducted in order to determine where cracks and other defects are located in the sewer system. Smoke will exit the pipe through these defects and make its way to the surface where it can be observed and documented by field crews.

Smoke will also exit through the normal venting systems in the sewer. It is also common to see gray smoke coming from the rooftop vents on buildings during smoke testing. This is expected and does not indicate any problems. Smoke should not enter buildings unless defective plumbing exists or drain traps are dry.

Offices who have seldom used drains should pour a gallon of water in each drain to fill the drain trap. This procedure will help prevent the possibility of smoke entering an office or shop space during the smoke testing activity.

More information on what to expect while tests are being conducted will be provided to the base population in the form of flyers posted to affected buildings. These tests utilize a non-toxic, non-hazardous chemical smoke that leaves no residue and creates no fire hazard. Field crews will be wearing ADS uniforms and vehicles will be marked with ADS logos. Information gained from this study will be used to repair and improve the Beale wastewater collection system.

HERITAGE CORNER

This week in U.S. air and space highlights

In 1926: The Ford 4-AT Trimotor first flew.

In 1930: Through July 4, John and Kenneth Hunter used a Stinson "Detroit" monoplane to set a world endurance record of 553 hours, 41 minutes and 30 seconds.

In 1943: After weeks of Allied bombings, the Italian garrison on Pantelleria Island surrendered without firing a shot. It was the first large defended area to fall to air power.

In 1944: In a "shuttle raid" between the USSR and Italy, Fifteenth Air Force bombed the Rumanian airfield at Focani.

In 1945: The 393rd Bombardment Squadron aircrews arrived at Tinian Island in the Marianas from Wendover AFB, Utah. Their aircraft, Boeing B-29s, were the only combat planes assigned to the 509th Composite Group, which later dropped the atomic bombs on Japan.

In 1948: The Air Force revised its aircraft designations from "P" for pursuit to "F" for fighter.

In 1951: Bill Bridgeman flew the D558-II to a record speed of Mach 1.79 at Edwards AFB, Calif.

In 1957: The General Dynamics' (Convair Division) experimental Atlas missile made its first launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

In 1972: B-52s, using laser-guided bombs, destroyed a major hydroelectric plant near Hanoi, Vietnam.

In 1996: Air Combat Command received its first J-8 JSTARS aircraft.

Friday evening Disturbia (PG-13)

Shia LaBeouf, Carrie-Anne Moss

After his father's death, Kale becomes sullen, withdrawn, and troubled -- so much so that he finds himself under a court-ordered sentence of house arrest. His mother works night and day to support herself and her son, only to be met with indifference and lethargy. The walls of his house begin to close in on Kale. He becomes a voyeur as his interests turn outside the windows of his suburban home towards those of his neighbors, one of which Kale begins to suspect is a serial killer. 100 minutes

Saturday evening The Invisible (PG-13)

Justin Chatwin, Margarita Levieva

Nick, is a high school senior with a bright future until, in a tragic case of mistaken identity, he is brutally attacked by a troubled girl, Annie, and his body is left for dead. Now in limbo, not quite dead but invisible to the living, his spirit can only watch as his mother and the police search frantically for him, unaware that he is only hours away from truly perishing. 95 minutes

Sunday matinee Next (PG-13)

Nicolas Cage, Julianne Moore

Las Vegas showroom magician Cris Johnson has a secret which is a gift and a curse which torments him: he can see a few minutes into the future. Sick of the examinations he underwent as a child and the interest of the government and medical establishment in his power, he lies low under an assumed name in Vegas, performing cheap tricks and living off small-time gambling "winnings." But when a terrorist group threatens to detonate a nuclear device in Los Angeles, government agent Callie Ferris must use all her wiles to capture Cris and convince him to help her stop the cataclysm. 95 minutes

Airmen receive first AF Combat Action Medals

By Staff Sgt. Monique Randolph
Secretary of the Air Force Office of Public Affairs

WASHINGTON — Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. T. Michael Moseley awarded six Airmen the Air Force Combat Action Medal during a ceremony June 12 at the Air Force Memorial.

These Airmen were the first in the Air Force to receive the new medal.

Recipients of the award were Maj. Steven A. Raspet, Capt. Allison K. Black, Senior Master Sgt. Ramon Colon-Lopez, Master Sgt. Charlie Peterson, Master Sgt. Byron P. Allen and Staff Sgt. Daniel L. Paxton.

The medal was created to recognize Air Force members who were engaged in air or ground combat off base in a combat zone.

This includes members who were under direct and hostile fire, or who personally engaged hostile forces with direct and lethal fire.

"As we thought about the 700,000 (Total Force) Airmen out there today who epitomize the warrior ethos while in combat on the ground or in the air, we began to think through this notion of a combat action ribbon that is part of our culture and our heritage," said General Moseley. "We believe our Airmen know this and understand this, and live it daily through their actions."

"In fact, since that awful day in September 2001, we've seen a dramatic increase in the number of Airmen engaged with or engaging hostile forces during performance of their duties, many of them on the surface, outside the wire, in nontraditional roles for Airmen," the general said.

We wanted an award to serve as an outward and visible reminder that combat is a fundamental part of being an Airman. And we wanted an Air Force-specific award for Airmen to wear proudly on their uniforms, according to the general.

The medal's design is one of a kind, General Moseley said.

It is the only American award with a diagonal stripe. The design was inspired by a personal insignia Brig. Gen. William "Billy" Mitchell had painted on the aircraft he flew over the St. Mihiel, (France) in September 1918.

He flew the aircraft while developing plans for what would become the first major American offensive in World War I.

"(General Mitchell's) legacy is manifested in today's Air Force in so many ways, not the least of which is this new medal," said General Moseley.

"This year we celebrate the 60th anniversary of his most important legacy... the creation of the United States Air Force as an independent service, according to General Moseley.

Members of General Mitchell's family were present for the ceremony. General Moseley presented General Mitchell's grandson, Tom Gilpin, with a shadow box commemorating General Mitchell's service and influence on the medal.

"While much has been said about my grandfather's unique life and limitless dedication to the advancement of air power, today highlights the loyalty he had to his fellow Airmen, his Air Force family," said Mr. Gilpin.

"My grandfather was the original Air Force wingman," he said.

"Today, it's an honor to be a part of the profound connection between the heritage bestowed by my grandfather and these amazing Airmen who have continued his boldness and his courage. I know he would be pleased by the Air Force Combat Action Medal as it symbolizes so well what he stood for: facing adversity with conviction and never backing down, according to Mr. Gilpin."

General Moseley also recognized Susan Gamble, a professional artist and master designer for the U.S. Mint — and the wife of Air Force Col. Mike Gamble — who completed the design of the medal, in conjunction with the Army Institute of Heraldry.

"(Ms. Gamble) transformed a rough sketch into the Air Force Combat Action Medal ... This magnificent creation serves as an enduring link to our heritage and our culture," said General Moseley. "It will forever remind us of American air power pioneers, and the courage of conviction they had, ultimately forging the Air Force into an independent service 60 years ago."

"(The medal) ties the Airmen of today engaged with enemy hostiles... to the legacy of courage, valor, service and sacrifice that our predecessors left us," he said. "These Airmen, like all Airmen, stand on the shoulders of giants such as Billy Mitchell, (Henry "Hap") Arnold, (Claire) Chennault, (James) Doolittle, (Curtis) LeMay and (Bernard) Schriever," said the general. "Today we recognize these six amazing Airmen for their combat roles as warriors wielding the air power bequeathed to us by these giants."

As the citation for each recipient was read, General Moseley pinned the medal on the Airman.

"There are so many great Airmen who have done so many incredible things, so to be singled out as one of them is an honor," said Major Raspet, the first Airman in the ceremony to receive the medal.

"It's a great honor anytime you're recognized for your efforts, but I don't look at it as heroic," said Captain Black. "I'm proud to represent all the (Airmen) who will receive this award."

Services offers Father's Day events

Father's Day is a time to celebrate, honor and commemorate fatherhood. It is a day that not only honors your father, but all men who have acted as a father figure in your life, whether as Stepfathers, Uncles, Grandfathers, or "Big Brothers." The Beale Services Squadron wants to wish all Dads a fantastic day by offering fun activities for the whole family to enjoy.

The Coyote Pub & Grill is offering dads a free breakfast when accompanied by a paying child family member. Order any breakfast item from the regular Pub menu from 7:00 – 11:00 AM. After breakfast why not treat dad to a round of golf? The Coyote Run Golf Course is holding a Father's Day Golf Tournament at 8:00 AM. This tournament is a 2-person scramble with handicap, father son/daughter teams. It costs only $30 per team plus green fees and optional cart. This is the perfect gift for dads who love to golf. Beale Lanes, from 11:00 AM – 5:00 PM, offers FREE bowling to dads when they are accompanied by a paying child. Not only is that a great deal, but you can sign up for the Strike Force and begin punching your Strike Force One cards to earn coupons for free soft drinks and bowling or Strike Force Two cards to earn beanie bears, t-shirts, lock key holders, a bowling ball and a chance to win up to $500 in cash!

If golfing or bowling is not your thing, perhaps you'd like to take dad to the Six Flags Discovery Kingdom for some Father's Day fun. The Outdoor Adventure Center has tickets for only $27 each. If you don't want the hassle of driving, then let OAC transport you for only $35 each, which includes ticket, transportation and souvenir picture. OAC has coordinated with Six Flags Discovery Kingdom, America's only combination wildlife park, oceanarium and theme park for a day of huge fun. Enjoy the roar of a classic wooden roller coaster featuring an opening drop from 10 stories high and speed of up to 50 miles per hour or the Medusa, an exciting coaster floorless, high speed, multi-inversion steel super coaster. Kids and parents can ride and play together in the huge Looney Tunes-themed Park. You can pick up your specially priced, "Beale Six Flags Father's Day Fun" tickets at OAC, good only for June 15, 16 & 17.

For the outdoorsmen in the family, the Rod-N-Gun club is having their annual Swap Meet June 15, 16 & 17 from 9:00 AM-3:00 PM. It's a FREE event open to all. Buy, sell, trade, or swap hunting, fishing, firearms, reloading equipment and supplies. June is Membership Month and would make a great Father's day gift!

What ever you decide to do for Father's Day, if it's dining out, bowling, golfing, a day trip to Six Flags, or something entirely different, make sure you have a great time with your family and be safe. ## Get your automobile ready for safe summertime driving

It's that time of the year when your vehicle needs some extra attention. Why not take your automobile to the Auto Hobby Center where mechanics can perform an engine analysis, coolant system flush, brake system flush, front wheel and or 4 wheel alignments, complete engine overhaul, paint and or repair your automobile. They also offer auto trouble shooting classes.

Perhaps you need your car detailed. The Auto Hobby Center now has a full time detailer giving 20% off every 3rd visit with a wide range of packages to suit everyone. The Center also sells all brands of automotive parts. The retail shop offers discount prices on parts including hard-to-find items, accessories for domestic and import vehicles, and rebuilt engines. An RV lift is available for customers who need to get under a larger vehicle.

The Auto Hobby Center has a direct link with off-base vendors to obtain whatever parts you need. Order auto parts before 12:00 PM and receive them by 3:00 PM that afternoon depending on availability. Our same-day parts service is available to active duty and retired military, DoD civilians, contract employees and NAF employees.

Check out the Auto Hobby for those "do it yourself" jobs or set up an appointment for a mechanic to do the job. For all those really big jobs, take advantage of the quarterly All Nighter coming this July, beginning July 14th at 9:00 AM and lasting until July 15th at 5:00 PM. This is open to everyone 12 years and older. There is free pizza delivery at 10:00 PM for those who are up late. For more information call the Auto Hobby Center at 634-2296 or visit the website at www.bealeservices.com.
